

THE ILLUSTRATED OLOGY TIMES

PRESS RELEASE

Publisher reveals startling new evidence as further Drake volume is uncovered

The discovery of a new work penned by eminent Victorian dragonologist Dr. Ernest Drake would appear to supply evidence that many creatures previously believed to be purely mythical do, in fact, exist. Drake originally revealed his findings in 1904, on his return from a year-long voyage around the world in his ship Hydra. He stunned assembled professors and invited guests at a lecture given to the Secret and Modern Society of Monsterologists in London's Hampstead, with detailed descriptions of such fabulous beasts as the chimera, the unicorn and the phoenix, all of which he had succeeded in studying at close quarters in their natural habitats.

Many were stunned by the priceless collection of exhibits, displayed in a Cabinet of Wonders, which Drake had assembled especially for the occasion. Containing, amongst other things, a piece of yeti fur, the shed skin of a sea serpent and a wing feather from a hippogriff, it appeared to prove beyond any doubt that, like his beloved dragons, these magnificent creatures, though extremely rare, do still exist.

A facsimile edition of Drake's work, MONSTEROLOGY – The Complete Book of Fabulous Beasts, originally published in 1904, is to be released by eminent Ology publishers The Templar Company in July and will be available from all good book stores.

Publisher Amanda Wood is delighted that the Ology phenomenon—which began in 2003 with the publication of the eccentric

Dr. Drake's DRAGONOLOGY—continues, with over 12 million Ology books in print worldwide.

The complete Ology series can be seen at www.ologyworld.com

*MONSTEROLOGY*TM

Edited by Dugald A. Steer

Illustrated by Wayne Anderson, Douglas Carrel, Helen Ward and Tomislav Tomić, with Ian Andrew

Notes to Editors

For more information, images, a review copy of Monsterology or to set up a competition please contact:

Jayne Roscoe, Press Officer

Telephone: 01306 748 136

jayne.roscoe@templarco.co.uk

MONSTEROLOGY –

The Complete Book of Fabulous Beasts

ISBN 978-84011-674-8 £17.99

Published July 2008

Monsterology is a trademark of
The Templar Company plc.

